Dear Parent/Guardian,

Congratulations! Your child has successfully completed the Play Your Part Workshop, joining 14,900 other Right To Play Junior Leaders who are making a difference. Right To Play is a global organization committed to educating, empowering and protecting children and youth affected by conflict, disease and poverty. Our unique, play-based approach to learning and development uses play to engage over one million children each week in more than 20 countries around the world, including more than 85 Indigenous communities and urban organizations across Canada.

Through Play Your Part, your child has explored how play-based games and activities can improve lives and communities. That's why we empower Junior Leaders worldwide to take action in their own communities by conducting play-based educational activities for their peers that focus on quality education, healthy practices, gender equality, child protection and building peaceful communities. As part of our global network of Junior Leaders, your child is showing the enthusiasm and ability to create real, positive change at home and around the world. To harness this potential, their school will be hosting the Play Your Part Challenge. With the support of the school staff and Right To Play, your child will help plan and carry out educational games and engaging activities in support of Right To Play programs around the world. Through the Challenge, students will have the opportunity to connect and meaningfully engage with the power of play while they begin to see themselves as global citizens.

Your support as a parent/guardian is vital to your child's participation as a Junior Leader. Over the coming weeks, you should be hearing from your child's school about the amazing activities they are planning and how you can get involved – stay tuned!
